

Evan Gildenblatt is a native Cincinnati and third-year JD student at the University of Cincinnati College of Law, where he holds a Taft Scholarship and a Fellowship from the Urban Morgan Institute for Human Rights. He is an Articles Editor for the University of Cincinnati Law Review and Senior Articles Editor for Human Rights Quarterly, and just concluded a term as Chair of the Student Legal Education Committee. Evan earned his BA and MPA from Kent State University and has conducted research into both political corruption and public sector ethics.

Chris Bryant is the Rufus King Professor of Constitutional Law at the University of Cincinnati, where he has taught for eighteen years, joining the faculty after a brief stint at the Boyd School of Law at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Before going into teaching, Chris graduated from Hanover College in nearby Hanover, Indiana and then the University of Chicago Law School. He then clerked for the Honorable James L. Buckley of the United States Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit, worked as an associate attorney for the D.C. law firm, Shea & Gardner, and served as an Assistant to the U.S. Senate Legal Counsel.